I spoke to [redacted], who recalls that the original decision to terminate Subject was strictly routine, because of an overall cutback in the Program. [redacted] knows Subject and apparently heard that Subject was writing the novel, which could cause us some problems, and the decision was made not to debrief him. [redacted] is an active program located in [redacted] and it maintains a stable of writers so that appropriate articles might be planted in the foreign press. We would have to go to [redacted] if we want more details.
